Thereafter, he developed Mr Shaha's Recipes for Wonder. Within five scientific areas, Mr Shaha includes experiments that seek to demonstrate the science. Therefore, within the sound section, using the ingredients of wire coat hangers and string, he seeks to show how 'sounds are produced and how they travel.' Furthermore we are invited to create balloon powered cars, with ingredients including card, masking tape, drinking straws, kebab skewers and plasticine and bottle tops.

Review of Mr Shaha's Recipes for Wonder. January 8, 2020. First, let me just assure you that this is a science book, not a cookery one. Even though there is very little computer-related stuff in it, I thought it worth reviewing here because STEM is flavour of the month, and indeed has been for several years. If we can get kids interested in ...
